

High Fives

Updated for OWL2 Jan. 28, 2006
Corrected Dec. 30, 2006 (HAFIS*)

A “high five” is defined by Mike Baron (list-maker extraordinaire) as a five-letter word which begins or ends with a high-scoring letter. If you look at a Scrabble® board, you will notice many places where premium squares are five spaces apart, thus allowing these letters to be multiplied by four, six, or nine depending on placement and available hooks. Please note that many of the words on this list serve double duty by cleaning up a messy rack as well. It's entirely possible – and not uncommon – to draw a bingo rack immediately after a high five play, thereby netting you 100 points or more over two turns. This list may be one of the most valuable, yet underrated, lists to know.

The uncommon high fives are listed below.
